

Brief Minutes of Meeting
January 9, 2007

Judith McGuire, Andy Knaus, Dian Seidel and Rob Enelow were in attendance.

Home Visits: Andy and Judy reported on home visits. People are very receptive, completely ignorant about Mayors' Agreement, grateful for bulbs (which they haven't tried for the most part), and interested in global warming. Many submitted their email addresses. Advice from Andy and Judy: tailor what you say to whom you meet.

Greenhouse Gas Assessment: could not be discussed because Stuart Sessions was out of town and hadn't conveyed information to Judy about progress.

Other business:

Rob Enelow noted that Michael Guhin is a senior leader in St. John's church at the edge of town and suggested they approach the church, possibly through Michael, to work on GW with us.

"Too hot not to handle" is a new documentary about global warming recommended for viewing.

February Forecast: it was decided to prepare an article on the Mayors' Agreement.

We discussed the lack of attendance and wondered whether we should recruit more members. It was decided that we should approach people we know to join the committee so that we have more people to work on the issues.

It was agreed that Judy would talk to Stuart about how to get the assessment done. We discussed possibly hiring someone to work with him.

Rob urged us to get to know Ted Pachter, the new Asst. Town Manager, who could be useful in getting things done.

The next meeting will be Feb. 27 unless there is reason to meet before then.
